

Clarkson Integrator PSTC Racquette

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 6, 1948

Construction of Studio For Campus Station Progressing Satisfactorily

In following up the decision made at the last Executive Board meeting of Campus Station WNTC, work has already begun on a temporary studio with which to start broadcast operations. This studio is being built above the student publications office located in the building on the corner of Main street and Pierrepont Avenue.

Fluorescent lighting has already been installed, and the walls have been prepared for painting and refinishing. When in operation this set-up will employ temporary equipment. This equipment, as yet is not at hand; however, its arrival is expected shortly, and operations will begin as soon thereafter as possible. This studio, while much smaller than the final studio planned, and while using only portable equipment, will still be able to bring many of the programs originally planned, by employing telephone lines and like equipment.

A permanent studio has been planned to be housed in the building behind the Crane House. This studio will have available for its use the finest equipment that can be obtained.